EXECUTIVE LEADERSHIP

ADAM NEUMANN

Co-founder and Chief Executive Officer

Adam Neumann is the Co-founder and CEO of WeWork, which provides workspace, community, and services to over 248,000 members in 74 cities around the world. Adam, along with co-founder Miguel McKelvey, started WeWork in 2010 in the Soho neighborhood of New York City with the intention of creating a workspace environment centered around the idea of community, and the belief that people will achieve more together than they could on their own. Adam and team want to grow WeWork everywhere to serve everyone, expanding globally and focusing on building technology that connects members around the world so they are empowered to do what they love.

Previously, Adam co-founded and ran Big Tent Inc., where he developed Egg Baby and Krawlers, well-known brands of children's clothing.

Adam lives in New York City. He is the proud father of five children, and loving husband to his wife, Rebekah.

MIGUEL MCKELVEY

Co-founder and Chief Culture Officer

Miguel McKelvey is the Co-founder and Chief Culture Officer of WeWork, a platform for creators that helps people make a life, not just a living. Miguel oversees diverse initiatives across the company, ensuring that WeWork's foundational values are infused into all aspects of the company's culture, product and operations.

Miguel and Co-founder Adam Neumann started WeWork in 2010 in New York City. Before WeWork, Miguel and Adam started Green Desk, a turnkey eco-friendly work space solution based in Brooklyn. Previously, Miguel worked on the international rollout of American Apparel's retail stores.

Miguel began his entrepreneurial career by co-founding the company English, Baby! – an English as a second language learning platform and social network – that is still thriving today.

Originally from Oregon, Miguel earned his B.A. in Architecture from the University of Oregon, where he also played basketball.
